Your Path Abroad Starts Here

EdVise Bangladesh is a trusted international education consultancy dedicated to helping students pursue higher education at leading universities around the world. Through expert guidance, ethical counseling, and personalized support, EdVise simplifies every stage of the study abroad journey – from choosing the right destination to successfully beginning life as an international student

Why Edvise Exists

To provide honest, reliable, and student-centered guidance that empowers students to achieve their international education goals through personalized counseling, ethical practices, and professional support. We believe every student's journey is unique, shaped by their own academic background, financial circumstances, and personal ambitions — which is why we never rely on one-size-fits-all advice or push students toward options that don't genuinely serve their interests.

Our Vision

To become one of Bangladesh's most trusted international education consultancies by connecting students with world-class learning opportunities and inspiring them to become confident global citizens. We envision a future where a student's background, financial means, or hometown never determines whether they get access to a world-class education — only their ambition and effort should.

As we grow, we're committed to deepening our partnerships with universities across established and emerging study destinations alike, giving students more genuine choice rather than steering them toward whichever institution offers the easiest commission. Trust, for us, isn't a marketing word — it's something we intend to earn with every family we work with, one honest recommendation at a time.

A Few Words of Guidance

Md. Enamul Haque

Chairman

Through my time in international admissions, I've come to realize one thing clearly: no two students are the same their goals, their finances, their fears are all different. So my role was never to give the same advice to everyone. It's to actually listen, understand where a student is coming from, and then guide them honestly, even when the easy answer isn't the right one.

As Chairman, that same principle guides how I want Edvise to grow built on trust, not shortcuts. Every journey I've been part of here has taught me something new, and it's exactly how I try to steer this organization: one honest decision at a time, so that every student who walks through our door gets guidance they can actually rely on.

In My Own Words

Mohammad Jahangir

Managing Director & CEO

I've spent years in international admissions, and if there's one thing that's stayed with me, it's this: no two students are the same. Their goals, their finances, their fears all different. So my job was never to hand out the same advice to everyone. It's to actually listen, understand where a student is really coming from, and then be honest with them even when the easy answer isn't the right one.

That belief is what shaped Edvise from day one. Every partnership we've built and every student we've guided has reinforced the same thing: real trust comes from honesty, not sales pitches. And that's exactly how I want our whole team to work one honest conversation at a time, from the first meeting to the day a student is finally settled into their new life abroad.
